Secrets, eh? Why do people in soap bother? If I lived in soapland (and sometimes it feels as if I do!), I'd be confessing everything to everyone on a daily basis. I'd rather that than keeping a lid on my sins and waiting for it all to be exposed in the pub to 15 of my best pals and 10 random extras. I mean, Laurel and Bob have been nervous wrecks since their secret bonk – and the stress levels only rise in the Dales this week, as Harriet spots the pair getting cosy. Just fess up and get through it!

"Bob and Laurel are nervous wrecks..."

Meanwhile in Corrie, there's more trouble for Rana following her affair confession to Zeedan last week. Had she told him all that time ago, this would be old news already – plus, Sophie wouldn't have had the chance to nick Kate! And EastEnders' Mel is only now telling son Hunter his father's sins?

She should have opened the 'Steve Owen' Wikipedia page and left it in his cot. He'd be over it by now!

EMMERDALE | ITV THURSDAY

Ross' ACID ATTACK HORROR!

HE'S CAUGHT IN THE CROSSFIRE BETWEEN DEBBIE AND JOE...

Debbie's vendetta against Joe has horrendous repercussions for Ross this week, after he ends up being the victim of a brutal acid attack!

The simmering hatred between Debbie and Joe has boiled over in recent weeks, and Ross has become a pawn in their dangerous game. Up until this point, he's been happy to do whatever he can to help Debbie bring down the new lord of the manor – but he's going to regret ever getting involved in her revenge plot...

"This storyline is a big responsibility, and one that I was very nervous about taking on," reveals Michael Parr, who plays Ross. "I know it's a reality for some people, so it's important to get it right and do the story justice. The Emmerdale team has done extensive research, and we really want to raise awareness of the devastating consequences an attack like this has on a person's life."

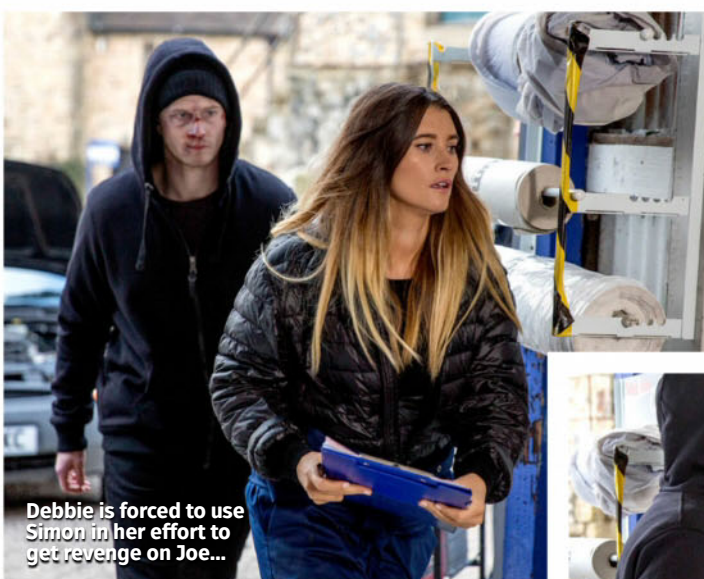

SECRET AGENT

You can't blame Debbie for wanting to get her own back on Joe – after all, he did make her homeless and leave her heartbroken, all in the name of getting revenge on her mum Charity. Debs has been trying to make his life hell since, and Ross was keen to offer his services to the woman he was so in love with.

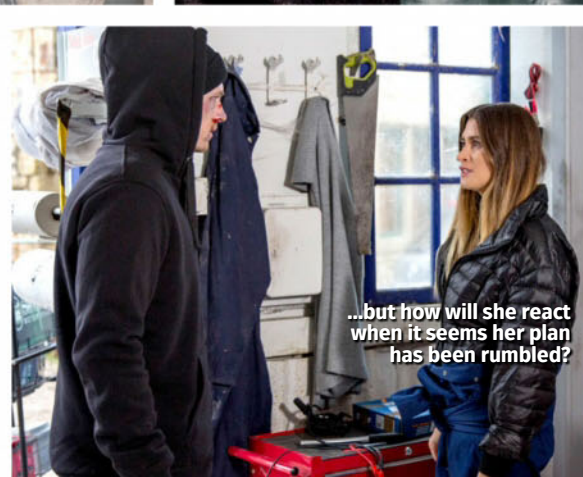

"Debbie has been screwed over by Joe – and Ross still has a bit of a thing for her," reckons Michael. "There's a connection, and because Ross doesn't have a family any more, he needs to start making some friends rather than enemies. He thinks he can be Debbie's knight in shining armour."

The plan was for Ross to secure a job as Joe's right-hand man, so he could find out inside information and feed it back to the Dingles. However, while Ross started out as a willing participant in the plot, he's now beginning to have second thoughts about what they're doing to Joe...

CONTINUED OVER ↘

Debbie is forced to use Simon in her effort to get revenge on Joe...

...but how will she react when it seems her plan has been rumbled?

INSIDE SCOOP

"Ironically, it's the way Debbie speaks to Ross that prompts his decision to bow out of their arrangement," explains Michael. "She's cold, and thinks he's taking baby steps rather than doing what she wants against Joe. Ross is trying to play a longer game, but Debbie isn't patient enough and she's quite snappy with him. Ross feels as if she's being ungrateful, so he wants out."

NO ORDINARY JOE

Understandably, the Dingles don't react well when Ross announces that he no longer wants any part of their plan. But what he doesn't realise is that Joe's henchman Graham has witnessed his exchange with Cain – and it's made him suspicious about what Ross is up to.

"Cain and Ross have an argument, and Ross walks off, leaving Cain fuming," Michael tells us. "I don't think Cain is too worried at this point, though, as it doesn't cross his mind that Ross could team up with Joe against the Dingles."

"Surprisingly, Ross has enjoyed being around Joe more than the Dingles," adds the actor. "Joe takes him to parties, pays him handsomely and is also polite to him. Ross realises he'd rather be on Joe's team – but just as he finds his footing, both Debbie and Joe turn on him..."

With Ross out of the picture, Debbie begs Cain to take over his duties, and urges him to plant drugs up at the big house. Cain goes to dodgy dealer Simon and asks him to do the deed – but Debbie is stunned when Simon later turns up at the garage battered and bruised, and informs her that their scheme was rumbled.

WRONG TIME AND PLACE

Meanwhile, Joe has figured out that Ross has been working as a double agent – and decides to confront him about his duplicitous behaviour.

"Ross is gutted, as he was about to stop playing games for the Dingles and be loyal to Joe," sighs Michael. "But after Joe finds out and fires him on the spot, Ross knows he's messed things up. He feels hard done by, so he takes his revenge and steals Joe's car."

It's a move that will cost Ross dearly, though. While he's nicking posh motors, Debbie is instructing Simon to harm Joe in exchange for a handsome cash reward. Desperate Simon agrees to the job – but there are tragic consequences when he spots Ross getting out of Joe's car and mistakes him for his target!

What happens next will surely change Ross' life forever. But with acid attacks on the rise in the UK, Michael has relished the chance to work on something that's such a huge talking point right now.

"It's a big subject, and that excites me," he admits. "It's like being back at drama school, where you would get a play and then have to research all the themes and topics. It's great to have something to sink my teeth into."

Sarah Ellis

Disturbing TREND

The Emmerdale acid plot is sadly true to life...

Emmerdale is the first UK soap to feature a story about an acid attack – and it's a hot topic in the news at the moment. In London alone the number of assaults involving a corrosive substance has more than doubled since 2014, and Britain now has one of the highest recorded rates of acid attacks in the world.

CRACKING DOWN

It's thought this is due to substances such as household bleach being widely available, while knives and guns are more restricted. This has prompted the proposal of laws prohibiting the sale of corrosive substances to under-18s, and imposing harsher sentences on anyone caught carrying acid as a weapon.

IN THE NEWS

A recent high-profile case involved Arthur Collins (pictured), the former boyfriend of TOWIE's Ferne McCann. He was sentenced to 25 years in prison after throwing a corrosive liquid in a nightclub, seriously injuring 14 people.

Model and acid-attack survivor Katie Piper described her own ordeal as a life sentence, after being left partially blind, with severe scars on her upper body. She wants tougher sanctions for those guilty of such crimes.

Hunter confronts his mum about the lies that she's told him

Sins of the father!

MEL IS REUNITED WITH HER SON – UNTIL GHOSTS OF THE PAST RETURN TO HAUNT HER...

EASTENDERS | BBC1 TUESDAY

The moment that Mel has been praying for finally arrives this week, as she enjoys an emotional reunion with her son Hunter.

Mel is desperately relieved to see her beloved boy again, having been forced to work in cahoots with gangster Ciara in order to have Hunter back by her side. But when his first visit to Walford reveals tough truths concerning his late father Steve, Mel is left with some explaining to do...

"Albert Square holds a lot of memories for Mel – though only a few of them are happy ones!" our EastEnders sneak reminds us. "Who knows if she'd ever have returned were it not for Ciara's blackmail? She had to save her child – and now that she has, the last thing she needs is to revisit her chequered past. But Hunter has questions about the dad he's never met, and he wants answers!"

Mel fled Walford in 2002 after her husband Steve was killed in a car explosion while being chased by Phil Mitchell. She was pregnant with Hunter at the time, and mother and son have been living in Portugal ever since. But this week, it transpires that Mel may have been a little economical with the truth concerning Hunter's heritage, and she's thrown as her son discovers more about the man Steve used to be.

"Mel knows what a shady character Steve was!"

"Mel knows better than anyone just what a shady character her dead husband was," insists our spy. "But it appears she's chosen to keep Hunter in the dark about Steve's true nature. Now that Mel and Hunter are on his old stomping ground, though, will Steve's secrets be kept under wraps? What do you think?"

Mel is horrified after she realises Hunter has found out everything that she's kept hidden from him all these years – and the consequences are painful, to say the least. And when she finds Hunter at the grave of his grandmother – Steve's mum, Barbara – it's clear that he won't stop asking until Mel tells all.

Will Mel and Hunter discuss secrets that were thought to be long dead and buried?

"It seems there's no getting out of this – Mel is going to have to put her boy in the picture about his dad, warts and all," sighs our snitch. "He's always believed Steve to be a good man, but Mel was just trying to protect him. After all, what's the point in raking over all the bad stuff when the bloke is six feet under? Mel reckoned fabricating this perfect story was for the best."

Whether Mel is ready for it or not, will she be forced to open up to Hunter about her murky past with his father?

Allison Jones

BAD DAD!

Steve definitely didn't live a quiet life...

MURDER!

Steve arrived in 1998, after buying the nightclub he relaunched as E20. He bludgeoned his ex-lover Saskia Duncan to death when she tried to strangle him – and then allowed his lackey Matthew Rose to be sent down for the crime.

ADDICTION!

When Matthew's conviction was quashed in 2000, he terrified Steve with a drastic revenge plot – tying him up and threatening to set him alight. The shock of this attack sparked a drug addiction, which Steve struggled to shake off.

KIDNAP!

Steve married Mel in 2001, the day after discovering she'd slept with Phil. As a result, he was the prime suspect in the infamous 'Who Shot Phil?' investigation. But when Phil set up Dan Sullivan for the crime, Dan kidnapped Mel in vengeance.

REVENGE!

Dan took the opportunity to tell Mel a few home truths about her husband. Horrified by the revelation of Steve's countless criminal activities, Mel managed to escape from Dan's clutches and proceeded to burn down E20.

ROBBERY!

Having messed up his insurance, Steve was left brassic by the blaze – so he organised a robbery to pay for the club's renovation, roping in Billy to help. He reunited with Mel, before setting his sights on rival Phil – lying that he'd slept with Sharon.

DEATH!

Phil attacked Steve, who then slept with Phil's sister Sam – before plotting to flee to the US with Mel, Phil's ex Lisa, and their daughter Louise. A deadly car chase ensued, with Phil grabbing Louise from Steve's car just before it exploded.

CORONATION STREET | ITV MONDAY

Rana outed to her family!

BUT HER SHAME TURNS TO SHOCK AT HER PARENTS' REACTION...

Rana's world comes crashing down this week, as betrayed Zeedan reveals to her family that she's cheated on him with a woman.

The horrified Habeeps can't believe it when they arrive at the Nazir house to find teetotal Zeedan handing out glasses of whisky. They are confused until Zeedan demands that Rana tell them why he's in this state – and after she tearfully admits to an affair, he reveals that her lover was female...

"I don't think Rana could ever have been prepared for how her family react, and how disgusted they are with her for being unfaithful," says Bhavna Limbachia, who plays the conflicted woman. "Rana's also hurt because they expected her to mess up – they are not surprised and have always thought her a disappointment. Her marriage is the first time her mum and dad had ever seen her in a positive light."

When Rana tries to explain herself, it's just as excruciating as she'd anticipated. However, there is part of her family's reaction she isn't banking on, as they make a shocking offer to the young couple. But will Rana take them up on it?

"It's complex because there is so much at stake for Rana," shares Bhavna. "She stands to lose her family, her husband, her husband's family and her friends. The fear of being alone and being disowned by the community is right at the forefront of her mind."

As Rana ponders what's been said, her brother Imran pushes her to go along with their parents' wishes, even as Zeedan's grandma Yasmeen

Rana stands to lose her family, her husband and her friends

Does Rana's heart belong to Kate? She faces a very difficult situation of what's to come, Bhavna is pleased that Rana found the courage to speak up.

"We owe it to girls watching who might be in a similar situation to Rana for her to come clean about who she is," declares the actress. "There are so many people who don't feel they can come out, and hopefully this will encourage conversations in households within every community, and allow more people to be honest about who they are."

Kate White

Rana couldn't hold in her guilt over betraying Zeedan takes the opposite view (see box). The only thing that's certain is that Rana feels more confused than ever...

"Rana told Zeedan about Kate because she wanted to get rid of the guilt and try to do the right thing by him," sighs Bhavna. "She didn't do it to clear the way for her and Kate, she just wants to move on with Zeedan with no more secrets."

Preventing the shame of another divorce in their family seems to be Mr and Mrs Habeeb's priority in the offer they make, so Rana and Zeedan have a lot to think about. But can he really forgive her, and can she forget Kate and make a future with him? Regardless

YASMEEN'S REACTION

It's not what you think...

Zeedan tries to hide Rana's affair from his gran, but of course Yasmeen finds out – and her response is surprising. Having been the victim of a cheating spouse herself, it would make sense for her to attack Rana. Instead, Yasmeen shows her softer side...

"Leanne tells her what's happened, and Rana thinks she's been fed to the lions – but Yasmeen is quite reasonable and supportive," reveals Bhavna. "That completely throws Rana, though she finds comfort in the reaction. Naturally, Yasmeen is protective of Zeedan, but she tries to be fair and understand both sides of the story."

Will Yasmeen accept it if Zeedan's marriage fails, or will she disown her granddaughter-in-law?

HAUNTED BY HILLMAN!

Gail's killer ex-husband is back in her life...

Gail is in for one hell of a shock!

Sophie Thompson will play Rosemary

Corrie is set to revive one of its most iconic characters – by bringing serial murderer Richard Hillman back from the dead!

But don't fret, he isn't about to emerge from his watery grave in the Weatherfield canal – Hillman will return via the powers of a psychic medium, Rosemary, who turns up on the cobbles and informs Gail that she has a message from her ex-husband...

"Imagine the look of horror on Gail's face when she learns that 'Tricky Dicky' wants to have a word," grins our Street insider. "She has long laid his ghost to rest, so the thought of battling those demons again is her worst nightmare!"

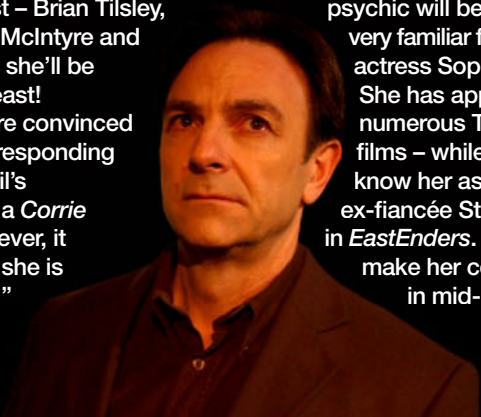

The drama will unfold after Rosemary turns up at Audrey's salon and convinces her that she has made contact with Audrey's late husband, Alf Roberts. Gail is dismissive of Rosemary and her 'gift' and warns her mother to be careful. However, it's not long before Rosemary turns her attentions to Gail, claiming to have messages from her dead fellas! Gail has buried four of the men from her past – Brian Tilsley, Richard Hillman, Joe McIntyre and Michael Rodwell – so she'll be spooked to say the least!

"Gail and Audrey are convinced that Rosemary is corresponding with Alf, and all of Gail's husbands," confirms a Corrie spokesperson. "However, it remains to be seen if she is all she claims to be..."

This isn't the first time that Gail has been haunted by Richard – she thought she was receiving letters and birthday cards from him when in fact, they were being sent by her devious son, David! So it will be interesting to see how quick she is to believe Rosemary.

Corrie viewers will notice that the psychic will be played by a very familiar face – esteemed actress Sophie Thompson. She has appeared in numerous TV shows and films – while soap fans will know her as Phil's abusive ex-fiancée Stella Crawford in EastEnders. Sophie will make her cobbles debut in mid-March.

RAINIE ALL THE WAY!

What storm will she whip up in Walford this time?

We nearly did a double take when Abi Branning's Auntie Rainie popped up beside her niece's deathbed – and news reaches us that we've not heard the last of her!

Star Tanya Franks is reprising the role of Cora Cross' troublesome daughter, and we'll see her again in the spring.

"It's like I've never been away from EastEnders," laughs the actress, who has played Rainie on and off since 2007. "I love working with everyone in the cast, and with John Yorke at the helm at the moment, the show is in good hands."

I'm excited to explore the next chapter in Rainie's journey."

Over the years, drug addict Rainie has caused no end of drama for her mum, sister Tanya and her extended family. She was part of an explosive story which saw Rainie latch on to Phil after he became hooked on crack cocaine – and when she was last seen in 2014, she'd stolen money from her mother following a hook-up with Ian. So as the men continue to recover from their many traumas, we're sure they will be just thrilled to see Rainie again...

BE MY VALENTINE! ♥

Robert and Aaron's loving reunion is imminent...

The moment that Robert and Aaron fans have been waiting for is almost upon us, with a big episode scheduled to air for the star-crossed lovers this 14 February.

"Valentine's Day is coming up, which is traditionally a time for falling in love or revisiting old loves – and that is definitely what is going to happen for Robert and Aaron," teases Dales boss Iain MacLeod. "We're going to explore all their old feelings which are not far from the surface – and Aaron will have a really big decision to make about where his future lies. But the question is: will it be one that he is happy with?"

Whatever the answer to that conundrum, we're hurtling towards the hugely anticipated Robron wedding that has been promised.

"We've been assured there will be a wedding, and Iain is a man of his word," grins Danny Miller, aka Aaron. "It would be nice if the ceremony didn't have any soap-style interruptions, but that's highly unlikely!"

Beloved Robron will be an item once more

DAVID'S DARK NIGHT

Will this be the moment that rapist Josh strikes?

CORRIE

This picture of David Platt out on the town for a friendly drink with Street newcomer Josh looks harmless enough – but it will spark a horrifying turn of events.

It's no secret that Coronation Street bosses are lining up a harrowing rape story for David, whose life will be turned upside down after Josh reportedly spikes his drink and assaults him.

"These snaps of actors Jack P Shepherd [David] and Ryan Clayton [Josh] filming in a bar on location seem to suggest that is how the plot might play out," reckons our Weatherfield snoop. "Just look at David – he seems perfectly relaxed as he downs a pint, unaware that predator Josh is waiting to pounce."

The story is already unfolding on screen, as new Webster's Autos mechanic Josh ingratiates himself with the locals by organising a charity boxing match in murdered Luke Britton's honour. David is one of the participants in the fight, and seeks out Josh this week for extra tips on his technique (see p30 for more).

It seems the pair are set to become good mates – but how long will it be before David finds out there's a monster lurking behind that friendly facade?

David has no idea of the evil that's on Josh's mind

Pants on parade!

KAREN GETS HER KNICKERS IN A TWIST...

That sneeze has been a long time coming, Carmel

The residents of Albert Square are no strangers to having their dirty laundry aired in public – but not in the literal sense! So when Karen rocks up at the Queen Vic this week and starts flaunting people's undies for all to see, there are some very red faces indeed... "This is typical Karen not giving two hoots about who she could be offending, so it's cringe but totally hilarious," grins our Walford mole. "Let's just say that, by the end of this particular episode, the locals learn more about each other than they'd ever wished to!"

Over the past couple of weeks, Karen has been getting to grips with her new job at the launderette – not to mention a lucrative sneaky sideline that involves charging customers extra to do their ironing.

The initiative hasn't been without incident, though, and Karen's weak quality control suffers another setback when she accidentally mixes up her customers' clothes – including their smalls! However, rather than offer a refund to the victims of her mistake, Karen comes up with another idea to ensure the items are returned to their rightful owners...

After she turns up at the Vic with a laundry basket full of bras, knickers and pants, Karen proceeds to hold them up for the locals to claim. The sight of one fella's chilli-pepper print boxer shorts tickles the likes of Carmel – whereas Linda is not impressed as she looks on from behind the bar, utterly mortified at the scene unfolding in her gaff.

"Luckily some people are able to see the funny side, but Karen's lack of discretion doesn't go down well with everyone," sighs our snitch. "She could do with a few more friends in the Square, and this latest incident isn't going to do her any favours on that score."

"Luckily some people are able to see the funny side of all this"

Karen's intimate fashion parade doesn't just cause embarrassment, either. Poor Honey's mind begins racing after finding some sexy lingerie in her washing basket, and no one in the Vic steps forward to retrieve the knickers. She begins to wonder what Billy may be up to behind her back, setting up the reveal of a huge secret that could blow their relationship apart (see p40 for the full story).

Will Karen's moneymaking scheme come back to bite her on the bum if the locals decide to withdraw their business from the launderette? Or can her cheeky enterprise be salvaged?

You can say that again!

Aidan vows: “I’ll give you my kidney!”

Time is running out for Carla Connor this week, as the former Underworld boss collapses in the Rovers and her secret illness is finally revealed to the locals. But when Aidan is declared a donor match for his sister, is there hope for Carla – or has she left it too late?

The new drama kicks off after Carla starts hitting the booze at the Rovers. With her fate still uncertain, Carla has decided to make the most of her remaining time by embarking on a fling with young Daniel Osbourne – much to the disapproval of her ex-husband Peter Barlow, who is Daniel’s half-brother! However, Peter’s annoyance soon turns to concern for Carla’s health...

“Peter thinks Carla is making a fool of herself by sleeping with someone as young as Daniel,” declares our cobbles insider. “Of course, with their history, we all know there may be a bit more to it than that. However, that fuss goes out the window after Carla hits the deck. Peter thinks she’s drunk, but then Roy reveals the real story. As her family rally round and she’s rushed to hospital, the message is clear: Carla needs a new kidney, and fast!”

Gathering at her bedside, the Connors are determined to do whatever it takes to keep Carla alive. And with test results revealing that Aidan is a match for her, he announces that he will donate a kidney to save his sibling. That leads his dad

Johnny – who has so far been kept in the dark about his daughter’s condition – to herald Aidan a hero as the doctors prepare them for what the operation entails.

As Carla lies in hospital, with Peter and Daniel both anxious to be by her side in her time of need, what does the future hold for the one-time queen of the Street – both in life and in love?

Will Carla and arch-enemy Tracy finally have something in common?

Street rivals Carla Connor and Tracy Barlow have never shared much common ground – apart from occasionally sleeping with the same men and trying to kill each other!

But long-time Corrie viewers may remember that Tracy underwent a kidney transplant back in 1995 after taking an Ecstasy pill in a nightclub and collapsing. Her then-stepdad Samir Rachid was found to be a match and agreed to donate one of his kidneys – and when he then died following a shocking racist attack, Tracy's mum Deirdre gave permission for her late husband's kidney to be donated to save her troublesome daughter.

So, before we know it, Tracy could be handing out words of wisdom to recovering Carla as the pair compare surgical scars at the Bistro. Or maybe not...

Martin vs car: will he stop Stacey from getting away?

EASTENDERS | BBC1 FRIDAY

Martin & Stacey's Square showdown!

Martin throws himself in front of estranged wife Stacey's taxi this week – convinced she's doing a runner with their children.

When he sees Lily, Arthur and baby Hope all piling into a cab, Martin is certain that Stacey is intent on taking them away. As he rushes over to stop them, incensed Stacey leaps from the vehicle to give her ex a reality check – only for the former sweethearts to end up having a slanging match in front of the entire Square. But is Martin right to be concerned about what Stacey is up to?

"It's been a terrible time for Martin – he's been betrayed

CAN HE STOP HER LEAVING WITH THE KIDS?

by Stacey, and the suffering seems to be never-ending," sighs our Walford snitch. "He's lost his wife, and he feels as if he's lost his children too. Stacey is being difficult about him having them overnight, and Martin is devastated. No matter what has happened between them, he's always been a doting father."

After Martin pours his heart out to Michelle, she makes an attempt at reasoning with her sister-in-law to no avail. But Martin is stunned when Stacey later comes round to explain that she has had a change of heart, and is happy for Martin to look after the kids. It isn't long, however, before he grows suspicious and accuses her of using him while she sneaks off to see Max – throwing Stacey's attempt at repairing their relationship back in her face.

"Stacey knows that she did wrong, but she's sick of Martin's attitude," whispers

“Stacey knows she did wrong, but she's sick of Martin's attitude!”

With the battle on between Martin and Stacey, worse is still to come...

As Martin's war with Stacey rages on, actor James Bye – who plays him – is enjoying the dramatic break-up scenes between the pair, even if some have come as a surprise...

"Looking back over the recent scenes with Stacey, it was actually shocking because it was so violent," he admits. "Martin's been through so much, though. I don't think he's dealt with it the right way, but it's shown that he has a backbone."

And Martin is certainly going to need that in the coming weeks. Stacey is currently out in the cold, while Martin is enjoying the support of his family. However, let's not forget that Stacey has reinforcements on the way, with the forthcoming arrival of mum Jean and her protective relative Kat! But James thinks Martin is ready for the fight.

"Ultimately, Stacey wants to walk all over him," notes the star. "But Martin's not going to let that happen..."

our insider. "He's flying off the handle all the time, and it can't be good for the kids. With everything that's going on to disrupt the children, Stacey needs a bit of normality. But having caused some serious damage to her marriage, she is finding out that her reckless actions are going to have far-reaching consequences."

As Martin begins to consider seeking legal advice, Michelle is horrified to witness Stacey bundling her offspring into a minicab – and she quickly alerts her brother. Soon, he and Stacey are screaming at one another in the Square, the kids are crying, and everyone is watching the pair make a spectacle of themselves.

As distraught Stacey insists that she and the kids are going away whether he likes it or not, will Martin allow his family to drive right out of his life?

Ches rumbles horrible Henry!

HE IS GEMMA'S HERO AFTER HE DISCOVERS THE TRUTH ABOUT HER FELLA...

Gemma is heading for heartbreak this week, as her boyfriend Henry's true colours are revealed.

She's distraught after she discovers from best mate Chesney that cruel Henry has only been dating her for a bet.

But as Gemma's world comes crashing down, Ches is quick to defend her – by punching the posh rotter in the face!

"Poor Gemma," sighs our Weatherfield spy. "She really believed that she'd found her Prince Charming when she met Henry. With him being the heir to the Newton And Ridley brewery business, she felt like Cinderella when they first met. Gemma couldn't believe her luck back then – but now she's about to rue the day their paths ever crossed."

While oblivious Gemma has thrown herself into her new romance, viewers have been stunned by the revelation that Henry has hooked up with the kooky kebab shop worker as part of a wager with his mate. It's that sad fact that comes to light this week, when Ches overhears Henry and his cohort Hugo in the Bistro.

"Gemma and Henry meet up for a meal with Hugo and his girlfriend," reveals our sneak.

"Chesney isn't sat far away, and hears Hugo slagging off Gemma in her absence. When Henry fails to stand up for her, Chesney is narked – but once the boys discuss the true nature of their relationship with their respective 'girlfriends', Ches really sees red!"

"Chesney realises that Gemma needs to know"

Outraged on his close pal's behalf, Ches is gutted as he realises that Gemma must be told what Henry's game is. It's a shame, as Gemma recently went to town on organising a birthday bash for Henry in the Rovers – with a fancy dress theme of Newton And Ridley pub names – and Henry seemed genuinely touched by her kind-hearted

Chesney just wants to do the right thing – but it means breaking Gemma's heart

Chesney can't contain his rage any longer – and lashes out at Henry efforts. However, there can be no decent explanation for him to offer regarding his cruel behaviour – which means that Gemma will be left nursing a broken heart. “Ches realises that there’s no getting away from it – Gemma needs to know,” insists our insider. “That gutsy girl is no pushover, but she’s really given her heart to Henry. So we wouldn’t want to be in her shoes right now – here’s hoping her feisty nature will prompt Gemma to give Henry what’s coming to him!”

It doesn’t look good, though, when Gemma arrives for work at the kebab shop in a right old state. After Henry comes looking for her later, Chesney snaps – and finally smacks him one!

But what exactly has Henry turned up to say to Gemma? And is there a chance in hell that she could ever forgive him?

Conniving Peri has Goldie thinking she will soon be a gran

HOLLYOAKS | Channel 4 MONDAY

The grandmother of all shocks!

GOLDIE IS STUNNED BY PRINCE'S NEWS, BUT WHAT OF HER OWN FUTURE?

Last year, Goldie McQueen went on the run to prevent her son Prince being arrested for robbing the Lovedays – but this week she's back, and once again looking out for her kids as she learns that Peri is pregnant by Prince!

"Oh, Goldie is absolutely fuming when she finds out what's been going on!" says Chelsee Healey, who returns to her role as Goldie after taking maternity leave from the soap to have her first child, Coco. "Becoming a father is not something that she wants for Prince. And since Goldie was a young mum herself, she's definitely not ready for people to start calling her Granny – you can imagine how she reacts to that prospect!"

However, things aren't how they seem, as Peri is faking her pregnancy in an attempt to break up Prince and his girlfriend Lily for good. The scheming schoolgirl has so far managed to fool everyone using an old ultrasound photo. Disaster strikes this week, when Peri gets into a row with her mum Leela and falls to the ground, later claiming she has 'lost' the baby because of their scuffle. But Goldie's reaction is not what you might expect.

"Goldie may not have warmed to the idea of Prince becoming a dad initially, but she does slowly get her head around the idea – then it's all just taken away," Chelsee tells us. "So she's actually a bit gutted about it in the end."

However, while distraught Prince insists that he still wants to be with Peri, with or without a baby, Goldie has her own matters of the heart to deal with as she is reunited with former love Jesse.

"Goldie still has a soft spot for Jesse, and I believe that he still really cares about her," reckons Chelsee. "It's just that things didn't end up working out between them before."

The pair have even more in common now that Jesse is in trouble with the law for smuggling drugs into the country. However, when the pair rekindle their romance, Jesse drops a huge bombshell on Goldie: rather than get sent to prison, he thinks he and Goldie should go on the run together! Will she agree to pack her bags and leave her family behind again?

"Goldie's ex Shane thinks she should stay and face the police," shares Chelsee. "If she rides it out, she could get out of prison and have her old life back. But she's also tempted to go on the run with Jesse, despite the fact that she knows it will get her in more trouble. It's a big decision to make..."

Goldie is reunited with Jesse – but for how long will they stay together?

NAPPY TIMES AHEAD!

Chelsee has been busy playing a new role off screen – as mum to daughter, Coco, whom she and boyfriend Jack Malloy welcomed last July. And she tells us that she's loving life as a working mother...

How are you coping with having to juggle motherhood and work?

It's a huge change being a mum. Getting both me and the baby ready to leave home on time is like a military operation! But I wouldn't change it for the world. Coco's just a dream and like my best friend. Although there are now lots of dirty nappies for me to deal with!

Were you nervous about coming back?

Yes, the thought of leaving Coco was scary. But being at home with a baby is a job in itself, so weirdly going to work felt like a bit of a break!

Do you enjoy Goldie's gear?

Oh yes. She's gone on the run and is back with a better weave – where did she get the money?

She returns in disguise: the wig, the hat, the shades. It's hilarious!

Harriet has been
guilt-ridden Cain

Harriet is in hot water this week, as she tries to keep her role as local vicar. But while she confesses her own sins, what will she do when she spots something going on between Bob and Laurel?

After the catastrophe of her decision to resign to be with Cain – only for him to end their relationship – Harriet is hoping she can convince Bishop Barry to reinstate her. The problem is, she said and did some pretty awful things to her boss when she handed in her notice...

“Bishop Barry is accusing Cain of throwing a brick at his car – but it was Harriet who committed the crime!” says our Emmerdale snitch. “It was a moment of madness, and if Harriet let Cain take the blame, she could probably get away with it. Harriet has already surrendered too many of her morals during her relationship with Cain Dingle, though. Now it's time to be honest.”

However, Cain is insistent that Harriet say nothing since he owes her, and taking the blame will at least go some way toward making amends

– but it's against everything she believes in. And later, as the parishioners join forces to tell Bishop Barry that they want her to stay, Harriet stumbles upon another moral dilemma...

“Harriet has noticed how Laurel behaves around Bob, and she knows that he and Brenda almost split up over his infidelity,” shares our snoop.

THE COMMUNITY RALLIES ROUND TO HELP ZAK AND CO - BUT WHO'S BEHIND THE OPERATION?

The Dingles begin the daunting task of rebuilding their home this week – but they're delighted to get some unexpected help.

It's a huge task for the family, though Zak and Sam know they have to crack on with it. So they begin by putting the wall back up...

"The two of them have a go, and it fills Lisa with pride to see the men of the clan committed to getting them back on track," shares our village gossip. "Sadly, after Zak and Sam step away to admire their handiwork, disaster strikes! A light touch sends the bricks tumbling down in a heap, and they're all back to square one."

The false start is a real blow to Lisa, who realises they will be without a roof over their heads for quite some time. However, she hasn't counted on the generous spirit of the

"There's no doubt the Dingles have friends, but this selfless act wouldn't have been possible without someone driving it forward," notes our spy. "Yet no one seems to know who the mysterious benefactor is."

Will Zak and Lisa find out to whom they owe this positive progress, or will the clan's secret saviour remain anonymous?

Nicola's secret plan exposed?

PHELAN GROWS SUSPICIOUS ABOUT WHAT'S GOING ON...

Suspicious Phelan gains entry to his daughter's flat

There's high drama at Nicola's place this week – as Phelan forces his way in to discover what she's hiding.

Since they reconnected following Anna's guilty verdict, Phelan has been wondering why daughter Nicola doesn't want him to visit her at home.

Viewers know it's because terrified Seb is currently hiding out there, as Nicola launches a daring plan to entrap her murderous father. But when Faye books a taxi over, Phelan follows her...

"Phelan correctly guesses that this has something to do with Seb, and he forces his way past Faye and into the flat," explains our cobbles insider. "Nicola is desperate to get him out of there and protect Seb, so she pretends there's something wrong with her baby. Seeing his daughter doubled over in agony is enough to make Phelan stop and get her to hospital. But nothing can change the fact that he's on to Nicola now."

She'd done well to again ingratiate herself with Phelan after their massive falling-out – but following the drama at the hospital, Nicola's emotional dad begs her to move into No 11 with him and Eileen so that he can care for her. Given that she believes Anna is an innocent woman and is certain that Phelan killed Luke, Nicola is playing with fire by getting close to her killer dad – yet she's determined to see him sent down.

"Nicola is a brave woman and thinks she's the only one who can get close enough to Phelan to trip him up," says

“Nothing can change the fact that Phelan is on to Nicola now”

The end for Sally and Tim?

SALLY FEARS THE WORST...

Devastated Sally has to make a big choice this week: will she leave the Street with Tim and Faye?

The terrified dad is taking his daughter away, fearing that she could become killer Phelan's next victim if they stay in Weatherfield. Sally understands why her husband is making the huge decision, but it means leaving everything they have – and she's not ready to do that. Given her reluctance, Tim has made arrangements to go alone with Faye and stay with his dad. Can Sally really see off the man she loves, though?

It's a terrible situation for traumatised Sal, who has her own daughters to think of, plus her role as mayor. But choosing her political ambitions over her family is something not even Sally would do, and she's soon telling Rosie and Sophie they may have to do without her.

Will Sally leave one daughter behind for the sake of another?

The Webster girls are sad at the idea that Sally and Tim have to go, but they understand why they are making the tough choice. With Phelan roaming the cobbles, and Anna in jail for a crime she didn't commit, it looks as though his luck may never run out. Accordingly, taking Faye out of harm's way seems like a no-brainer for Tim, who is intent on protecting his little girl at all costs.

Will the Metcalfes depart the Street and allow Phelan's wicked antics to go unchecked?

Kate White

our source. "But if he realises she's been harbouring Seb, he'll know that everything she's been saying to him is a lie. While everyone believes that Phelan would never hurt his daughter, it's a theory Nicola doesn't want to test!"

After the pregnancy drama, Phelan reflects on his time at Nicola's flat and Faye's story that she went there to seek advice about being bullied.

Have the pair done enough to convince him, or should Seb start sleeping with one eye open?

RANT! RAVE! WE LOVE TO HEAR YOUR OPINIONS!

HALFWAY TO HEAVEN

EastEnders newcomer Halfway is absolutely brilliant – he cracks me up. And to be honest, I totally fancy him as well! I'm not sure why. It can't be the pudding bowl haircut... Is it because he's just a nice, caring, genuine guy? I hope he stays in the Vic for a long time to come.

🗨️ | Adrian, Rochdale

GOLDEN GRAHAM

My favourite new character in Emmerdale is Joe Tate's driver and general fixer, Graham. I was intrigued when Graham said to Joe: "You know how much I owe you." What's that all about, then? Graham seems to be Joe's conscience and a kind of father figure, but he's in his debt in some way. I can't wait to hear the story!

🗨️ | Cally, Bristol

I can't wait for Bernice to spend some time with strong, silent Graham. He's perfect for her!

his toe in the sea of romance! I hope it works out well for him, him. His previous encounters have been less than successful!

🗨️ | Mrs Bullock, Swadlincote

Perhaps Dr Jimmi is researching a cure for a broken heart?

NOT FINE & DANDY

I'm sorry, but I really don't buy the whole Darren and Mandy romance in Hollyoaks. I get that Mandy was upset that she'd just found out her fiancé Luke was actually married to someone else, but surely she would also be furious with Darren for not telling her? I don't think she would go for another liar so soon after Luke.

🗨️ | Janice, London

Mandy needs to move to a village that isn't chock-full of her exes!

DELICATE DANCE

I understand that Bethany is using her lap-dancing job to exert her control over men for a change, and it's a nice idea. But I'm certain I can't be the only one worried that Corrie is glamorising this line of work for any impressionable girls or young women watching?

🗨️ | Emma

Surely 'Tassles' club looks anything but glamorous...

EastEnders has always been about the kitchen table drama

FOWLER VS FOWLER

The bitter break-up between Stacey and Martin in EastEnders has quickly become gripping viewing. What's great about it is that so many other people are caught up in the drama, such as Sonia and Kush. It's very true-to-life.

🗨️ | Deirdre, Blackpool

It's clear that lots of you have a view on this storyline...

It's a real problem, isn't it, that while Stacey was the one who cheated on Martin – and surely the one to blame for ending their marriage – it's Martin who is the one in danger of being left without proper access to what he sees as his children, whether his name is on the birth certificates or not. I suspect this is going to be a battle where everyone ends up a loser...

🗨️ | Dave, Sheffield

Perhaps Kat might soon return to Albert Square and bang everybody's heads together?

Asking Ben to lie was nothing but a Piper dream

PIPE DOWN

I've always been a big fan of Piper in Neighbours, but I thought her behaviour this week was out of line.

Asking Ben to change his statement to the police – and risk jail himself – just to save her boyfriend Tyler from a jail sentence was so cruel. Xanthe was right to have a go at her!

🗨️ | Nancy

People do crazy things when they're desperate...

ILLUSTRATION: ROD DAVIS

ANNA'S SENT DOWN!

The Street has a long and rich history of sending innocent women to prison. But surely none have been more cruelly wronged than Anna Windass, caught in a trap laid by evil Phelan...

Coronation Street managed a new low with the outcome of Anna's trial. So now we have a rape victim being sent to jail by her rapist? Are we supposed to find Phelan's behaviour entertaining?

🗨️ | Michael, Norwich

I love Phelan so much. I think I could watch him in Corrie forever – but I'm developing a nagging feeling that he should have been caught by the police long ago. After all, so many people have made accusations about him, and many of them have since died and/or disappeared! Surely the police would be suspicious?

🗨️ | Eleanor

Debbie Rush was completely brilliant in the trial scenes as Anna saw each little glimmer of hope snuffed out. Her panicked rant in court about everything that Phelan had done was so sad – especially because we viewers know that every word of it is true.

🗨️ | John, Washington

Meanwhile, several readers wrote in response to our article last issue: The Women Who Will Destroy Phelan!

I like your idea that it will be a gang of women who will ultimately bring Phelan down – that's very much in tune with the politics of today. He's outwitted many men so far, so I hope he's undone by underestimating women!

🗨️ | Victoria, London

Please don't let Phelan be killed at the end. It's too good for him. That man needs to suffer. In prison please – with regular visits from Gail!

THE BIG interview

“I almost turned down the role of Billy... and here I am, 20 years later!”

As Honey discovers her fiancé is a cheat, Perry Fenwick lifts the lid on his Walford past, present and future...

Billy's a bit of a prat, but he's not really a bad man!” chuckles actor Perry Fenwick, as he joins Inside Soap on the phone from the comfort of his Walford dressing room. “He's a kind of Del Boy – the sort of character that's trying to better himself, but just can't seem to stay out of trouble!”

Yes, Billy is a first-class plonker – but he is also a part of the EastEnders furniture that we can't imagine being without. And the feeling is mutual for Perry, who is set to mark two decades with the soap later this year...

What a wonderful career with EastEnders, Perry! How does it feel?
Unbelievable! I remember our current boss John Yorke – who was in charge of the show shortly after I joined – did a lot for me in terms of turning the character around. I think they needed a villain, but when John took over, he called me into his office and said, “I've got a problem with you”. I remember thinking, ‘Oh great, he's going to let me go’, and then he said, “Billy's nasty, but for some reason the public like you”. So, John created a background for Billy where he'd suffered terribly as a child – and overnight it changed. It's weird talking about Billy like this because it's as if I'm talking about a person I knew 20 years ago!

Is Billy someone that you would be friends with in real life?
He wouldn't be the first person I'd go for a pint with, but he'd be

Perry on...

WALFORD LEGENDS!

“For my first scene

I had to go into the Queen Vic and say, ‘Any chance of a decent pint in here, or what?’. Staring back at me were the likes of Mike Reid [Frank Butcher], Barbara Windsor [Peggy Mitchell], Wendy Richard [Pauline Fowler], Pam St Clement [Pat Butcher], June Brown [Dot] and Gretchen Franklin [Ethel Skinner], and it felt as if I was in an episode of Spitting Image! It doesn't matter how long you've been acting, you still get nervous. Some people can hide it better – but yeah, I was terrified!”

“Billy is a character the audience want to shout at through their TVs!”

Shame again: In addition to his fling, Billy has also lost his job part of the group. You always have one mate who comes out with something and you'll go, "Oh shut up, Bill!", but they're harmless enough. Billy would do anything for anyone – he just goes about it the wrong way.

Indeed – we can't believe that he cheated on Honey with Tina! What do you make of that story?

It's great because I'm picking up scripts and thinking, 'This is brilliant' – but then it's Billy and Honey, so I'm also thinking, 'How could he do that to the woman of his dreams?'. It was a moment of madness, but that is so Billy Mitchell. He's a character the audience just wants to shout at through their TVs!

Tell us about the moment when Honey finds out about Tina...

They have a conversation which is at cross purposes. She's talking about one thing and he's talking about another, and because he is such a prat, he unwittingly admits it all.

What was it like to film those scenes with Emma Barton, who plays Honey?

Horrible [laughs]! We get on so well, so it's hard playing that stuff. I can't speak for her, but I imagine that she thinks, 'I don't want my Billy doing that', and equally I really don't like upsetting Honey!

FAAAMMILLLY!

"Janet being born with Down's syndrome is the story that myself and Emma are most proud of. It was very well researched, and when you're given something like that to do, you work hard to do it justice. What I love is that we first held Grace [who plays Janet] when she was six to eight weeks old, and she's 12 now. And with little Freddie Phillips [who plays young William], we are like a family."

FUNERALS!

"I reckon I get a lot of looks from the cast who are thinking, 'Hang on a minute, he's got his clobber on – who's going next?'. It's one of the many jobs that Billy has done over the years, and my thinking is that if he's the funeral director, I'm not going anywhere yet!"

➤ FROM PREVIOUS PAGE

As Billy is also forced to confess that he has lost his job, his world comes crashing down around him. The future isn't looking good as Honey processes his betrayal – but for Perry, it's the opportunity to mark his incredible milestone with one hell of a story.

Have you made any plans to celebrate your 20 years?

I should – it's two decades! There are some young actors joining EastEnders who have never seen the show without me in it, so I sometimes give myself a pat on the back. I only signed to do three episodes!

Do you have any souvenirs from those early days?

Funnily enough, I moved house a few years ago and found an old diary of mine from 1998. I was unemployed at the time, so there was a page where the morning said: '11.30am – sign on at Stratford'. Then for the afternoon it read: '2.30pm – audition BBC EastEnders'. That was the day that changed everything.

What has kept you with the show?

Well, people forget that I've been acting since I was a kid. That was another anniversary I hit recently – it was 40 years ago at Christmas that I was in Oliver! in the West End as a member of Fagin's gang. Other actors will say to me, "Do you not fancy anything different?", but I've been lucky enough to do the National Theatre and the

Perry on...

BILLY'S BOMBER JACKET!

"I've actually still got the original! Funnily enough, I had Billy's jacket on a couple of weeks ago and someone said to me, "You know they are on trend again, don't you?". I always knew that it would come back!"

it funny when we go out because Phil is so sullen that people won't go up to him, whereas they come up to me because they think Billy is more amenable. So he sits there and has a drink while I do all the talking!

How do you switch off from being Billy when you're not on set?

I'm driving home, and between the exit gates and my house, I shake it off. It's a work-life balance, but EastEnders is like my second home. I'm talking to you in my dressing room now, and I've got my telly in here, and a bed.

Tish [Dean, aka Sharon] is my neighbour, Gillian Taylforth [Kathy] is just across the corridor, and Emma is over the road. If you can imagine it, it's like we're in our little houses, and then we go to work in our fake houses – and then we go home to our real houses!

You've seen a lot of transitions with new producers. Have you ever thought Billy's time was up?

When we get a new boss I just lie low in the hope that they won't go, "Hang on a minute..." [laughs]. I've never taken it for granted. Even if I have one line in a scene, I want that line to be brilliant.

What would be your dream storyline for Billy?

I reckon it's time Billy and Honey got married again. It's wobbly right now, but that would be nice as, if we did, I think we'd be the only couple in soap history to have had four weddings. Four weddings and hopefully not a funeral!

Laura-Jayne Tyler

set and say to myself, "This is a nice touch". And to think, I nearly turned the role of Billy down when they offered it to me! I found out it was only three episodes initially, and I thought this will probably shoot me in the foot if the opportunity for a longer job comes along. But Julia Crampsie – who is the casting director here – basically said to my agent, "Look he's going to play a Mitchell". So I thought sod it, all right!

Did you have a cast member as your mentor?

I was lucky in that I had a lot of stuff with Steve McFadden [Phil] and he showed me the ropes. That made it easier for me to suss things out, but it's a proper system now. You get cast on the show and two weeks later you're filming it, and six weeks later you can't walk down the road without being recognised.

How do you cope with the attention the show receives?

Sometimes if you're just going out for a pint of milk you think, 'I really wasn't planning on having my picture taken!'. But the lovely thing is that people seem to genuinely like Billy, so I don't get anything negative. People feel that they can cuddle me, and older women are like, "Oh, you silly sod!". Steve finds

Take the bench: Guilty Tina will soon have some explaining to do to Honey

Royal Court. I made films, too – and if you name any cop show from the 80s and 90s, I was in them!

So what drew you to EastEnders?

I had a lot of mates that were in this show. Nick Berry [who played Simon 'Wicksy' Wicks] was my best mate at school, so I'd often visit him on the

Wake-up call: Rebecca realises she has very few people left to lean on

A waking NIGHTMARE!

EMMERDALE | ITV MONDAY

AS REBECCA REGAINS CONSCIOUSNESS, EMILY HEAD CONSIDERS HER ALTER EGO'S FUTURE...

Rebecca wakes from her coma and receives devastating news this week, as she's told that her sister and father were killed in the car crash that very nearly led to her own demise.

While the news of her loss sinks in, Rebecca's guilty nephew Lachlan lurks, unsure if she'll remember that he was to blame for his family careering into the path of a lorry. But when Rebecca insists he will pay for what he's done, it appears his fears have been borne out. And as Emily Head – who plays Rebecca – joins us for a chat, she tells us that 'Lucky' had better beware...

"For Rebecca, the idea of living without her dad and her sister is the worst thing that she can possibly imagine," admits the 29-year-old actress. "When she first comes out of her coma, she's totally disorientated. And then the news about her family is broken to her, and her world just falls away. She struggles to understand it all – it's the most terrible thing that has ever happened to her."

Meanwhile, Robert is delighted that his son Seb isn't about to lose his mum – not least because it was he and Seb the Whites were chasing down when the crash occurred. However, as Rebecca wakes up there are mixed emotions for Lachlan. Hoping against hope that his aunt won't recall the moments leading up to their collision, the lad knows that his entire future depends on her recovery. Initially, he's given reason to think that everything will turn out okay – but as Emily reveals, that relief is short-lived.

"Rebecca has a vague recollection of the events prior to the crash at first," shares the former star of sitcom The Inbetweeners. "She remembers Robert being angry with her, and her being angry with him. She doesn't think he's telling her the truth, until she sees Lachlan's face and realises Chrissie and Lawrence really are dead. She just clings on to Lachlan, sobbing – he's the only member of the family she has left, other than Seb."

The Whites were preparing to emigrate to Australia when fate intervened, and while Rebecca's primary goal was to get herself and Seb as far from Robert as possible, she'd also grown tired of Lachlan's unpredictable behaviour. But that's all brushed aside when, for a short while, it seems as if it's just her, Seb and Lachlan against the world. That's until Rebecca's memory begins to return.

"She's trying hard to remember everything," explains Emily. "They say that in periods of great trauma you can recall before and after it, but not the event itself – so at first it's just the lead-up she remembers. But her brain is working overtime trying to piece everything together."

"Then Rebecca wakes up feeling really frightened, and she hears Lachlan's voice," adds the actress.

"She turns to him and says, 'I know what you did – everyone will find out and you won't get away with it!'"

Soon after, desperate to try to make some sense of everything, Rebecca disappears from hospital and ends up back at Home Farm, unaware that Joe Tate has bought her former family seat. Hot on her heels are Robert and Lachlan – yet as they try to reassure her, is Rebecca set to reveal Lachlan's terrible secret?

"Lachlan is terrified of Rebecca at this point," sighs Emily. "Back at the hospital he tries to convince her she's just had a dream, but she screams at him to get out. He had this relief when Rebecca said she didn't remember the crash – though that has now definitely gone..."

Allison Jones

This is the worst thing that's ever happened to Rebecca...

White-knuckle ride: Chrissie came a cropper in the crash

Feeling 'Lucky'? Lachlan is relying on Rebecca forgetting the lead-up to the incident

"I miss them both terribly!"

Just like Rebecca, Emily is pining for her departed Dales family...

What is it like now that Louise Marwood (aka Chrissie) and John Rowe (who played Lawrence) have left the show?

It's a very strange feeling that they aren't here any more – it's really weird. We're not even filming on the Home Farm set now, so everything has changed. On occasion I think, 'I'll message Louise to find out what she's doing tonight...', and then I remember that she's not around!

You were a close-knit team, so it's no surprise that it's taking time to get used to it...

Very much so! John and Louise were here from the word go. I'd see them almost every day, so I miss them both terribly, and I think I will for a long time. They are such wonderful people, and wonderful actors to work with. It's really sad.

Have you been keeping in touch?

John sent me a text message on my birthday in December, which was very sweet. And Louise and I watched the big crash episode together. She'd planned to have a few people over to watch it, and I was off that day so I went down to London to visit her. It was lovely to see her again, but very strange to watch her die while sitting next to her!

“For someone so sharp, Daniel can be amazingly dense!”

HE'S WEATHERFIELD'S UNLIKELY ROMEO, BUT ROB MALLARD RECKONS DANIEL STILL HAS A LOT TO LEARN ABOUT WOMEN...

When we first met Ken's bookish son Daniel Osbourne, we knew he was a chip off the old block intelligence-wise – but little did we realise that he would give his Lothario old man a run for his money with the ladies too. With spoken-for Sinead, Gazette editor Cindy and now cougar Carla all falling for his charms, Daniel is certainly, erm, keeping up the family tradition. But even with that decent track record, can Daniel really handle a romance with Ms Connor?

“Oh, Carla is the cat with a mouse, and from her perspective, Daniel is her plaything!” laughs Rob Mallard, who plays the smitten fella. “Daniel isn't aware of that at first, so when Peter points out that Carla is using him, he doesn't want him to be right. But then Carla and Daniel have this chat which is almost ‘in for a penny, in for a pound’ – and he figures that as long as he knows that she's using him, then she's not!”

Given his enduring devotion to young Sinead, it's interesting that Daniel keeps having flings with women who are so much older than him. But Rob insists it comes as no surprise to him, as it's all down to absent mother Denise.

“Daniel is Oedipus [the mythical Greek king who killed his father and married his mother], and has a whole thing going on with women of a certain age,” shares the actor. “In this latest situation, obviously she's Carla Connor and has a certain magnetism. But an older woman who shows him attention will get Daniel's interest because he seeks approval due to the void left by his mum. He craves it!”

He might be after older women, but Daniel doesn't want the attention of the gossips. When news breaks about him and Carla, it's not just the ire of her ex – and his half-brother – Peter that Daniel has to contend with, but also the fact that Sinead is now in the know too.

“He's gutted as he's pined for her for over a year and lied about his feelings for the good of everyone else, and then when her wedding to Chesney fell apart she still didn't come to him,” Rob tells us. “After feeling spurned by Sinead, Daniel went elsewhere, but when it goes public, he panics. Bagging Carla gives him street cred – but for her, it's embarrassing, so he never expected it to end up getting around and for Sinead to find out.”

Carla is the cat with a mouse – Daniel is her plaything!

Carla the cougar: Ms Connor is very keen on a fling with Daniel Daniel doesn't have long to enjoy being on Carla's arm, though, after her collapse from kidney failure (see p18). It's a big shock as Daniel had no idea Carla was ill, and he's shaken by the revelation.

“Daniel is sideswiped,” shares Rob. “It's another woman who has pulled the wool over his eyes and hidden something from him that he's been completely unaware of. For someone who is so sharp in so many ways, Daniel can be amazingly dense.”

Oedipus complex: Rob believes Daniel's love life is affected by the relationship he had with his mum

The Carla issue brings Daniel into conflict with Peter, who can't believe what's been going on. The two men will clash repeatedly as they butt heads over hospitalised Carla, and Rob is excited to find out more about this incredibly dysfunctional sibling relationship.

"Peter is everything that Daniel isn't," muses Rob. "Peter's capable of aggression, but also being merciful.

He's lived a rough-and-tumble life and can be fierce, yet has a gentle side to him. Daniel sees himself as more highbrow, but he's jealous of Peter."

Their sibling rivalry will continue as Carla's health woes bring them into the same orbit – and it's not going to be easy...

"There's a brother code that says 'You don't try to kill our father' and 'You don't sleep with my ex-wife' – and Daniel's broken both of them!" laughs Rob. "I can't wait to look more closely at Daniel and Peter, and his relationship with his dad Ken too. There have been a lot of absent males in his life."

Kate White

Can true love win?

It's been a rocky road so far for Sinead and Daniel...

The big question viewers want answered is whether star-crossed lovers Daniel and Sinead can ever get their romance back on track. So does Rob reckon that there's still hope, and would he like to see the pair live happily ever after?

"Is Sinead the love of Daniel's life? I would like to say yes as everyone is rooting for them," admits the actor. "But I think Ken's prophecy is right and time will end up showing the differences between them – that maybe they're not as perfectly suited as they think they are.

"I do believe that they are meant to be together, though it could be a repeat of Ken and Deirdre."

If you rekindled an old flame 30 years later, you'd expect things to be a little different. But for Hollyoaks' Myra McQueen, things have changed more than most. Her former love Iain, who fathered her son John Paul, has transitioned and is now named Sally – but recent months have proved the love between them is still very much there. So, this week she decides to finally take a chance on this new relationship with her best mate.

It's been a rocky road to romance for the pair, and as we join stars Nicole Barber-Lane and Annie Wallace – who play Myra and Sally – for a chat about their characters' fledgling relationship, they reckon that these two may just have what it takes to go the distance...

We're so happy to hear Myra and Sally are finally getting together! What do you think of them as a couple?

Nicole I think they're great together! Myra has loved Sally from a long time ago – back when she was Iain – so they've got that history. It was always the plan to get them back together.

Annie They complement each other very well. They both have the same sense of humour, and I think it's very much the root of their bond. Myra is quite casual in nature, whereas Sally's more conservative – but they're similar people underneath all of that.

Nicole, why do you think it's taken Myra so long to admit she loves Sally?

Nicole It's been very difficult for Myra to accept that Sally is now a woman. That's a massive thing for anyone to get their head Girls just wanna have fun!

AS SALLY AND MYRA MAKE THINGS OFFICIAL, WE CHAT TO ANNIE WALLACE AND NICOLE BARBER-LANE ABOUT WHAT THE FUTURE HOLDS...

around – all along we've been aware that there are people watching who've been through this themselves, and it's difficult for all parties involved. It's about loving somebody, but not necessarily loving their physical being as it is now. There are a lot of questions running through Myra's head, but the one thing she does know is that she loves Sally.

And Annie, how hard has it been for Sally to have Myra keep rejecting her?

Annie I would imagine it's been quite hurtful for her. But Sally's smart, and she gets that this is not going to be easy. For Sally this is really straightforward – she's in love with Myra and she wants to be with her. Myra's not gay, but she loves Sally, and it's more than just a sisterly love. So Sally sees that this is very confusing for Myra – and it's not an unusual situation where someone who's trans is involved.

So what prompts Myra to finally commit to Sally this week?

Nicole She's frightened of losing her. It always gets to a point where you can tell that somebody's had enough, and the thought of Sally not being in Myra's life is too painful. She lost her once before – at the time she didn't understand why, but now she does. She realises if she doesn't step up and say, "Yes, we're together", then she may lose Sally for good.

Annie There's a moment where Myra has a bit of an epiphany about what she wants from life. I think it's going to be a bumpy ride for the two of them, so it will be interesting to see how it works out.

St Clair for drama: John Paul was initially unaware of his family bond with Sally

MRS & MRS!

We'd love to see Myra and Sally get hitched...

She's had many male suitors during her time in Hollyoaks village, but the closest Myra's got to a wedding is being mother of the bride at her kids' numerous ceremonies! But now she's found love with Sally, could the pair make things official?

"A wedding between those two would certainly be flamboyant," chuckles Annie. "Sally would have to try and keep a lid on things, but I think it'd be a lot of fun. I've not heard any whispers about that yet, but you never know in Hollyoaks. There's always a church handy!

"Maybe they should just change their names to McQueen-St Claire.

It sounds quite posh – so I think Myra would probably like that!"

How do Sally and Myra's loved ones react when they announce that they're together now?

Nicole They're not bothered – they really aren't! This is Hollyoaks, so everyone has their own dramas going on. They do have a son together, so I think this is something everyone saw coming, and it's not a big deal.

Annie What's going to be intriguing, though, is how Mercedes reacts to it when she gets back – because if you remember, she had misgivings about the relationship from the start. So when she returns later this year, there could be some disapproval.

Are the two of you enjoying working closely with each other?

Annie Oh yes, Nicole is great to work with – we're constantly laughing! And what's been great is that she's really gone for this storyline, and has been working to understand Myra's motivation, and what her needs and desires are. It's a

Myra has an epiphany about what she wants from life ANNIE an understanding. I don't know where this relationship is going to go for Myra, but I do really love working with Annie – so I hope we'll have an on-screen partnership for a long time to come.

CHARLIE DE MELO

Corrie's Imran Habeeb
...faces your questions!

As the newest solicitor in Weatherfield, Imran will get used to grilling people – but can star Charlie hold up under questioning from Inside Soap readers?

"What was your audition for Coronation Street like?"

It was actually very friendly. In the first audition, we had a conversation about the character and ran a scene in a variety of different ways. After that, I was invited to the set-up in MediaCity [where Corrie is filmed] to do a screen test with Bhavna Limbachia [Rana] in which they recreated the environment for a real shooting day at the Bistro. It was basically Bhavna sat there with a rotating door of potential brothers coming in and out! I imagine it must have been quite strange, but it was nice for me to get a sense of how it all works early on.

"What did you learn from being in Walford?"

Those guys have been part of the cultural zeitgeist for decades now, so to meet them face to face as a colleague was very strange. And of course they were delightful. Everyone has made me feel as welcome as possible.

"What would you say is the best thing about playing Imran?"

Mighty Thorp: The star knew Nicola before he joined

He's got a sort of twinkle in his eye and there's a roguish element to him. But at the same time he's fiercely loyal and proud, and takes things seriously when he needs to. There's a nice balance there, and different kinds of threads you can pull on to try things.

"What do viewers make of Imran?"

They've been so positive. I've been surprised and delighted by how welcoming the audience has been. As someone new being introduced to something so long-running, I wasn't entirely sure what to expect. But for the most part people have been really lovely to me, and even started spinning their own story threads about where potentially Imran might go.

"Which co-star would you most like to have a big story with?"

One of the first people to come over to talk to me was Connor McIntyre [Phelan]. I already knew Nicola Thorp [who plays Nicola] on the show – she and I have been friends for nearly 10 years, and she told me in advance

All that Jaz: Charlie played PC Jaz Jones in EastEnders last year

Law unto himself: Imran first showed up in Weatherfield for Rana and Zeedan's wedding about how lovely Connor was. Watching his work, there's a reason the man doesn't have any space above his mantle! He's incredible, so I'd relish an opportunity to work with him.

"You played a police officer on EastEnders last year. What did you learn from that?"

I think the biggest thing was not to be too precious about anything. You don't get time to rehearse on soaps – you have to have decisions ready and have an opinion on what it is you're saying and why, and then it has to happen. I have an unfortunate habit of dwelling on these things, but you don't have time for that in soap! I was only scheduled to be on EastEnders for half a day, but they ended up bringing me back a few times.

"I read that you did a show at [Shakespeare's] Globe theatre in London. What was that like?"

It was a dream – one I didn't realise I had, if I'm honest. I didn't have aspirations to work there, because I don't have a classical background.

But it's such a phenomenal place. There's so much dialogue between the audience and actors, and there was a sense of inclusion where everyone was part of what went on.

"If you could play any character in Corrie, who would you choose?"

I think maybe Carla Connor. She's a powerful woman and knows herself very well. Or Audrey! I really appreciate the kind of 'know thyself' aspect to her because it's something I'm sorely lacking as a person. There are some decisions I come to in life where I'm not

"What was your Corrie audition like?"

"What would you be doing if you weren't an actor?"

While I was at school I had a brief flirtation with the idea of going into medicine. It's hypothetical and I would have done terribly, but it's what both my parents do. That ambition was scuppered by the reality of it, because entirely sure what my opinion is. Audrey seems very self-confident and knows herself, which is an admirable quality.

there's no way I'd be able to practise medicine. Had acting not worked out, I genuinely don't know where I'd be.

"Who was the last person in the Corrie cast to make you laugh?"

Bhavna, for sure! In character she's having to deal with all these heavy issues, but she's able to bounce back from that and just become this jovial, energetic person once the cameras stop rolling. I find that gear change so fascinating that I can't help but laugh half the time. She really does feel like a sister and I'm becoming quite protective, so I'm having to make sure I don't overstep too many boundaries!

"What was it like working with pop star Pixie Lott [in the stage show of Breakfast At Tiffany's]?"

...asks reader Huw Smith from Brighton

Pixie was a delight. She'd be the first to tell you that doing a play like that is not necessarily her area of expertise, but she wasn't there just knowing she'd be on the poster. She took it seriously and wanted to learn, and as an actress she was warm and welcoming, and would try stuff out. She surprised me in more ways than one.

Back in the SADDLE!

AS SERENA RETURNS, CATHERINE RUSSELL TELLS US SHE WILL RESTORE ORDER...

“Hanssen is gone, colleagues have been shot and Ric is in prison... Holby City Hospital is in a bit of a mess!” chuckles returning star Catherine Russell, as we catch up on all the drama to have taken place in Serena’s absence. “But when I returned to filming, Joe McFadden was off doing Strictly Come Dancing of course, whereas Raf is dead – so coming back to work has been worse for Serena than it has for me!”

It has been nine months since Catherine swapped her stethoscope for the stage, leaving Holby to appear in comedy theatre show What The Butler Saw. The actress also took the opportunity to go travelling, which really topped her time away.

“My husband and I spent three months travelling in a campervan around Europe, and we managed to not kill each other – so that was a result!” grins Catherine, who is married to film producer Richard Holmes. “After five years of playing the same person, I just needed to go and do something

Bern victim: Serena fell for her fellow medic in a surprise development

Holb your head high: Serena is ready to return to work different, and bless Holby and the BBC for allowing me to do that.”

While Catherine was enjoying her hard-earned rest, Serena was recuperating as well – receiving the help she needed following her breakdown last year.

“Serena has done an awful lot of soul-searching, and her mental health is now stable,” reports the 52-year-old actress.

“I don’t think anybody ever gets over the death of a child, and losing her daughter is something that will always be with her. But Serena has coping mechanisms in place and is on a fairly even footing. She is remarkably robust.”

Strength and stability is exactly what Holby needs at the moment. With Hanssen gone, Serena steps into the role of acting CEO – albeit a bit reluctantly.

“I think she comes back believing it’s only temporary, and that she’ll be rushing back to Bernie [Wolfe, aka Serena’s former colleague and partner] and her trauma unit in Nairobi,” shares Catherine. “But by the end of the episode, Serena realises the hospital needs her, and going back to Bernie would be a selfish act. I don’t think she’d be able to live with herself.”

“So, Serena and Bernie are going to do the very mature thing of having a long-distance relationship, which is much easier to do nowadays.”

After ‘Berena’ proved so popular with Holby fans, there was a double dose of heartbreak in store when actress Jemma Redgrave, aka Bernie, left the show a few months after Catherine took her break. But the star insists that just because their characters’ romance isn’t represented on screen, it’s not the end of the world.

“I had to do a bit of firefighting on that score,” Catherine tells us. “It’s a habit that moviemakers seem to have that if there is a happy lesbian relationship, one of them will die, fall ill or have their legs amputated. I think people assumed that would be the case with Bernie and Serena, and I had to gently remind them that Holby City is a continuing drama. There has to be some separation or conflict, otherwise it would be boring to watch.”

That being said, Catherine is amazed and flattered that the support for Bernie and Serena is still so strong after all this time.

“I would come out of What The Butler Saw to sometimes 100 women who had travelled from all over the world,” she enthuses. “The Berena fandom has really taken off. In 10 years I can imagine people saying, ‘Where did this name Berena come from?’. They’re a solid group of women who all support each other, and that’s terrific to see.”

Laura-Jayne Tyler

Serena realises that going back to Bernie would be selfish...

The Wolfe RETURNS?

A comeback for Bernie could be on the cards...

With actress Jemma Redgrave having left Holby, Berena fans will have to settle for an off-screen long-distance relationship. Or will they?

“You never know what’s around the corner!” teases Catherine. “Holby City has such an excellent revolving door, and that’s because it’s a family. If someone fits, they will come back eventually.”

Hmm, interesting! Perhaps we will soon see Serena and Bernie together again after all...

Like father... LIKE SON?

As Hunter learns some home truths about Steve Owen, will he follow in his dodgy dad's footsteps? The apple often doesn't fall far from the tree in soap...

Arthur & MARTIN

A more sound geezer than Martin Fowler you could never meet, and the same was true of his dad Arthur. But while they're both salt-of-the-earth types, Arthur would go to pieces in times of trouble and withdraw into himself – leading to his famous breakdown in 1986 – while Martin has more of his mum Pauline's temper and often reacts with his fists. In fact, lamping a policeman during the gas explosion last year landed Martin in the nick – something dad and son have in common, as Arthur was banged up for stealing the Christmas Club money as a quick fix to his financial troubles. That didn't end very well...

Ken & DANIEL

Bookish but passionate, ambitious but frustrated, nice hair but no sense – Daniel and Ken are like two peas in a pod. However, while his backstreet upbringing left Ken a frustrated activist, desperate to make positive changes in the world, Daniel's abandonment by his father for most of his formative years has made him more twisted. Ken may have been a tearaway back in the day, but even he never tried to bump off his own dad!

Tom & JIMMY

All Jimmy wanted was high-flying dad Tom's admiration – and for a while he got it, after tirelessly toiling at the family firm and marrying the prettiest girl in town (stunning if scheming Sadie). But his little bro Matthew – cuter, cleverer, more cunning – slowly became the apple of daddy's eye, leaving poor Jimmy to settle for a quiet life with noisy Nicola. However, his shady involvement with the golf course development means he might yet make old Tom proud...

Dennis & DENNIS

Same name, same bad start in life – both big Dennis and little Dennis grew up without a dad. Big Dennis' dad – we'll call him Even Bigger Den – had no idea Big Dennis existed. And little Dennis never met his dad, as Big Dennis was killed before he was born. While Big Dennis found a father figure in gangster Jack Dalton, little Dennis is being brought up by Phil Mitchell, himself no stranger to the world of crime. Little Dennis has already shown his roots, blackmailing Michelle over her affair with teen Preston and bullying cousin Will. Has he learned nothing from the grim fate of his dad and gramps?

Chris & JOE

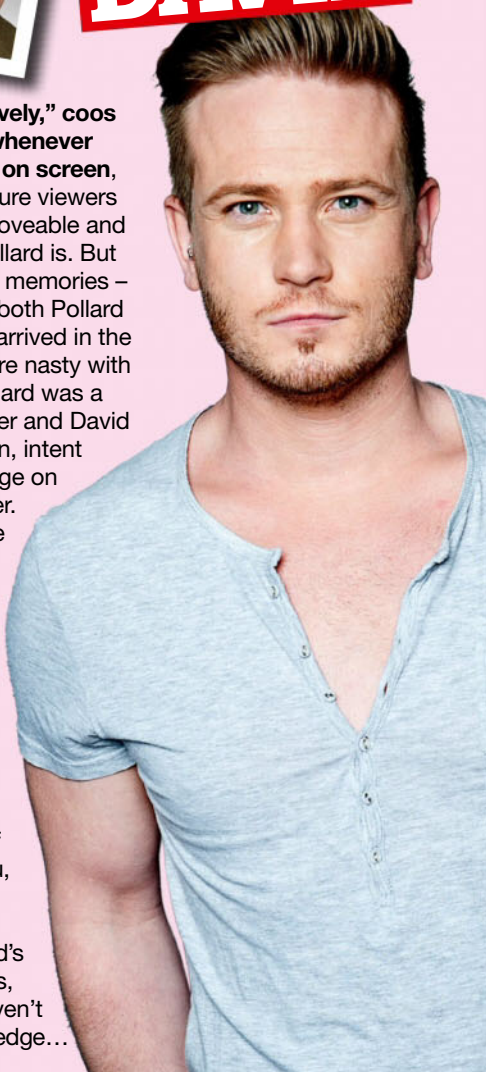

Ruthless doesn't begin to cover Joe's antics since he arrived, but 20 years ago it was his dad Chris who was the village villain. While Chris was a nice guy worn down by his disability and treatment by wicked women such as Charity and Kim, he had a heart of sorts. Chris loved Joe, but Joe is stone cold and fuelled by revenge in the name of a father he barely recalls. Could some of his dad's original traits lie deep inside, though?

Pollard & DAVID

"Oh, isn't he lovely," coos the audience whenever David appears on screen, while more mature viewers trill about how loveable and nice his dad Pollard is. But they have short memories – because when both Pollard and David first arrived in the village, they were nasty with a capital N! Pollard was a ruthless schemer and David his long-lost son, intent on taking revenge on his absent father. But age and the love of a good woman – plus the fact that soap bosses clocked the characters' potential for comedy – has transformed them into the dynamic duo of today. Mind you, after David's dalliance with Leyla and Pollard's council dealings, maybe they haven't totally lost that edge...

Jim & STEVE

While Jim is a hothead, always likely to strike out with his fists, son Steve is the opposite – first to duck a punch, then run and hide behind a sofa! But though Steve never really lived up to his dad's tough-guy Army persona, they have both taken risks in other ways – mainly when it comes to the law. They've both been banged up; in fact, Jim is still behind bars at Her Majesty's pleasure. And both make affable barmen and landlords, although Jim is far more skilled at ejecting a dodgy punter. However, there's one thing that will bond them forever: their devotion to "our Elizabeth", mother to Steve and the true love of Jim's life.

SHAUN EVANS
TELLS US WHY
WE'RE GETTING MORE OF THE
OXFORDSHIRE
THIS YEAR...

Fans of Endeavour who've been used to getting a new series in early January for the past two years might be wondering why it's taken a bit longer for series five to hit our screens, and there's a very good explanation: they had more films to make. The series' usual four-part run has been extended to six episodes this year, and as Inside TV catches up with star Shaun Evans, he tells us that having two more episodes was a blessing and a challenge...

"We're working all the time!" he admits. "Filming for 20 weeks is manageable, whereas 30 is a lot – it's a massive part of your year. But how often do you get to do what you're passionate about on a daily basis? And obviously there's an appetite for it."

The latest series takes place in 1968, against a backdrop of continuing social change – so Shaun is pleased that they have more time this series to reflect on the changing face of Britain.

"When they asked us to come back and do six episodes this time, my point at the beginning was, 'Okay, before we jump to that, what's going to be great about 1968 in this person's life that we deserve to tell two more stories?'" he explains. "You have to be more specific about what was going on at the time, and it just happens that '68 was a brilliantly fertile year."

The theme of change continues within the station itself, as Oxford City Police becomes Thames Valley Constabulary, and Morse himself has been promoted to detective sergeant. One of the duties that comes with that new responsibility is mentoring a new recruit, DC George Fancy.

"It's very loose – there's not much mentoring!" chuckles Shaun. "The kid's kind of a pain in the arse at the beginning, and I take him under my wing a little bit. But the actual story of this one is the end of the police force as they know it."

On top of all of that, Morse will be taking a little bit of work home with him when he clocks off, because he now finds himself sharing a flat with DS Strange – and as you'd expect, they make an odd couple.

"The idea is that they're both saving for a deposit, so this is just supposed to be a purely temporary arrangement – but it ends up continuing through the whole of these six films," grins Shaun. "You see them at home together quite a lot – Strange sat in his pyjamas, practising his trombone!"

Stranger Things

I watched Doctor Foster and oh my God, I was on the edge of my seat the whole time! I got really angry with her at some points, but I was completely on her side. And I've just finished Stranger Things, which is absolutely brilliant – we'd all like to be like Eleven, wouldn't we? Minus the nosebleeds.

I love any comedy with Olivia Colman in it. Flowers is one of my favourites, and I think she was brilliant in Fleabag. Her character is horrible, but funny – sometimes selfishness like that is hilarious because it's so true. We all know people like that – or we have those moments ourselves!

My favourite film is Silver Linings Playbook. Jennifer Lawrence's character Tiffany is so erratic, but so hilarious in so many parts of that movie because her performance is so raw and punchy. It has so much pizzazz.

If I'm just watching something in the background to relax to, it's always a toss-up between Friends, Gilmore Girls, or How I Met Your Mother. Or I'll put on the movie Sing Street – I got into it when we were doing Derry Girls as the director liked it.

If I could be in any other show, it'd be something like Transparent – that's right up my street.

I raced through it when I watched it on Amazon Prime. The writing is brilliant, so to be in that show would be a dream!

Intoxicated look: Verity wants a baby with boozy Meredith

CHANGING PLACES

AS THE HISTORICAL DRAMA RETURNS FOR A SECOND SERIES, LIFE FOR ONE RESIDENT WILL NEVER BE THE SAME...

The first series of Jamestown followed three women travelling to an American colony in 1619 to marry men most of them had never met. Now, Alice, Jocelyn and Verity have established themselves in the town – but a shocking event is about to remind them that they can never take their position for granted...

“From the point of view of a woman in Jamestown, that landscape is incredibly dangerous,” points out Naomi Battrick, who plays Jocelyn. “There is always going to be a fight going on – especially for somebody like Jocelyn, who goes out looking for it! But most of the time she gets away with it because she’s so brilliant.”

Alice, meanwhile, is heavily pregnant, and goes into labour prematurely after falling down a river bank.

Fortunately she delivers a healthy baby boy, but she soon finds that bringing the first new life into Jamestown carries a lot of expectation and responsibility.

“I think that was my fourth or fifth screen birth – I don’t know what it is about me that says, ‘Difficult birthing scene!’” chuckles Sophie Rundle, who plays Alice.

“The stunt lady who had the belly on literally threw herself down that cliff face, which was horrifying to see – and then I had to crawl in and do the last little roly-poly. It got really freezing – I had a bit of a sense of humour failure!”

Alice’s new motherhood gets Verity thinking about her own desire to have children, but her husband Meredith – the town drunk – is usually too sloshed to offer much help in that department...

“She has a yearning for stability and validation,” explains Niamh Walsh, who plays her. “She just wants a baby, and to not be a criminal any more – but because of everything she has going against her, it will never come easily.”

There are also new faces in Jamestown in the form of Angolan slaves who are put to work in the tobacco fields. One of the slaves, Pedro, is determined to become a free man, while his friend Maria is caught up in memories of what she has left behind.

“In a way, Pedro is saying, ‘You will not break me’ – that’s the crux of it all,” shares Abubakar Salim, who plays him. “This series is about human will, and that’s what’s explored.”

“Pedro’s tactics of, ‘We can do it as well’ aren’t really washing with Maria,” adds Abiola Ogunbiyi, who plays her. “Because for her, as soon as she accepts where she is, that’s the moment she lets go of her family and the life she has been taken from.”

Wilful resistance: Pedro won’t accept his lot in life

HITTING THE RIGHT NOTES

MÅNS ZELMERLÖW IS SET TO HELP US PICK OUR REPRESENTATIVE FOR LISBON...

After Lucie Jones' respectable 15th-place finish last year, the search is on again for a song that has what it takes to wow the juries and viewers at this year's Eurovision Song Contest in Lisbon. The selection show comes live from the Brighton Dome, the site of Abba's victory in 1974 – and so for a little Swedish twist, 2015 winner Måns Zelmerlöw will be co-hosting with Mel Giedroyc. Inside TV called up Måns to find out if there's a potential winner among the hopefuls...

Hi Måns! What do you make of the songs this year?

I think they are really good. The dynamic of the show is going to be great, because all the songs are quite different.

I really feel that we might have something here, and I cannot wait to see them live on stage because that's when everything happens. I'm crossing my fingers!

As a former winner, what advice do you have when it comes to choosing the song?

I think in the end, it's just about the song and the performer – if it stands out enough, I think the United Kingdom has as big of a chance of winning as anyone else. I've been asked if Brexit will affect them, and I really don't think that it would – I believe that it's all about the song.

You hosted Eurovision in Stockholm in 2016 – after something that huge, is live TV still scary?

Not really – that's the strange thing, I don't really get nervous hosting live shows, it's more performing on them. Because if you host, you still have an hour or more to make people like you, but when you're an artist you only have your three minutes and then it's over!

POLLY RUSSELL PREPARES A NEW FAMILY FOR A JOURNEY THROUGH FOOD HISTORY...

Another family accepts the challenge of living and eating their way through history, as the Back In Time series returns this week with another new angle to explore the past from. We chatted to the show's resident food historian Polly Russell to find out more...

"Previously all the episodes have essentially looked at families who were in a sort of middle-income bracket, and now we're very specifically looking at working people," she tells us. "The other thing that's really important is that we're looking at the north of England, so it has a regional specificity to it as well – that brings two new components into the programme."

The Ellis family – mum and dad Lesley and John, and their children Caitlin, Freya, and Harvey – will start their journey in 1918, when a working-class family's diet wasn't very enticing.

"In the early days of the experiment, they had hardly anything," recalls Polly. "At one point I think they had bread only, and they had one piece of bacon – the mum rubbed the bacon on all their pieces of bread so it had a kind of essence of bacon. The level of poverty, and the lack of variety, was really shocking to them. But they were also shocked when they had cow-heel pie at one point, and despite the fact that they thought they'd hate it, they loved it!"

ALEX POLIZZI HELPS AILING RESTAURANTS IN A NEW SERIES...

She's brought countless hotels back from the brink, and now Alex Polizzi is turning her attention to struggling restaurants. And in this new four-part series, she teams up with her brother-in-law, restaurateur Oliver Peyton...

"I said that I didn't want to do it on my own, I wanted to do it with Oliver!" Alex tells us. "I hoped that between Oliver and I, we would cover more bases – we disagree about lots of things but respect each other enormously, so the two of us should get to the right answer in the end!"

In the first episode, Alex and Oliver visit Italian restaurant Riobello in Bedford, which sits at the heart of a strong Italian community – meaning owners Giovanni and Amanda aren't short of competition.

"It was a real challenge to work out what we could offer there that wasn't already being done," recalls Alex. "The underlying theme to the whole series is how does the small guy have a chance against the chains who have more financial clout and get better sites. That was a theme that repeated itself in all four restaurants we tackled."

BLIND DATE | Channel 5 8PM

Tonight's show brings us to the end of the revived Blind Date's second series – which we can't help feeling has got a little bit lost in the shuffle, going out at the beginning of the year when all the other channels are bringing out their big guns too.

And we can't imagine that going up against Take Me Out for the dating show audience has helped matters, either. But we're keeping our fingers crossed for news of a recommission all the same.

In the meantime, tonight's show features a white witch from Preston who's looking for love, though will she find a magic moment with one of the show's three eligible bachelors? And former military man Dean from Wiltshire is hoping his dream girl is waiting behind the screen.

Sweet harmony

THE VOICE UK | ITV 8PM

Never underestimate the importance of chemistry – there's something about the line-up of coaches this year that just works when they're all together, and has made this show the most enjoyable it's been in ages. Of course, it's not just about hangin' with the coaches – there are many more talented singers waiting for their blind audition, and with the teams gradually filling up, they'll have to bring their A-game to impress Olly, Tom, J-Hud and Will.

SPIRAL | BBC4 9PM

For our money, this series of Spiral has been the strongest yet – and if our spies across the Channel are accurate, we may not have to wait as long for series seven as we did for series six, which is good news indeed. Tonight's double helping concludes the series, as Fromentin considers his future after realising what Laure and Gilou have been keeping from him, and both Roban and Joséphine find themselves held to account for their secrets.

While suspended from duty, Wallander is asked by his old friend Sten to investigate his father's death, but Wallander feels compelled to say no. However, when Sten is killed too, Wallander can't keep away from the case any longer.

CALL THE MIDWIFE | BBC1 8PM

On a home visit to expectant mother Mrs Lunt, Nurse Crane is concerned that she isn't coping – a fear that's compounded when Sister Winifred discovers one of the Lunt children at school dirty and bruised.

And when Mrs Lunt leaves her children behind at the clinic after her appointment, Trixie takes them home and finds out that Mr Lunt is very worried about how withdrawn his wife has become – but the family are totally unprepared for the diagnosis when Dr Turner refers her to a neurologist.

Elsewhere, Shelagh is anxious for Magda to make friends outside the Turner household – and encourages her to attend keep-fit classes with Valerie, where Violet cajoles the pair of them into entering the 'Miss Poplar 1963' competition that she and Fred are holding...

McMAFIA | BBC1 9PM

Everything seems to be catching up with Alex in the penultimate episode of the financial drama, but at least negotiations between Alex and Semiyon, and Vadim and Ilya, are pointing towards some sort of truce. Of course, it's never that simple, and someone is plotting to double-cross Alex yet again. Meanwhile, Vadim is considering what his next move should be – and whatever his decision, we imagine it involves putting all the pieces in place for an explosive finale next week...

SILENT WITNESS | BBC1 9PM

Merry Christmas! No, seriously, it's Christmas Day in the final two-parter of this Silent Witness series, as peculiar as it feels to be watching such things in early February.

Nikki is lying awake in the wee hours hoping for a call from Matt, but when the phone rings it's actually a summons for the Lyell Centre team to assist an investigation into the mass murder of a family at a swanky house in the country. "This is not the Christmas I was expecting," grouses Jack, as well he might.

Clarissa and Thomas run support from the Lyell while Nikki and Jack are on the scene – but just as they're processing the bodies, there's another gunshot from an unknown source, which turns their crime scene into a desperate fight for survival...

Case history

THE BULGER KILLERS: WAS JUSTICE DONE? | Channel 4 9PM

This month marks the 25th anniversary of the abduction and murder of two-year-old James Bulger by the then 10-year-old Jon Venables and Robert Thompson. When the two boys were charged in 1993, there was debate over whether it was right to try them in an adult court. This documentary reunites key people from that trial to re-evaluate the proceedings, and consider whether the sentences given to Venables and Thompson were appropriate for their crime.

FLATPACK EMPIRE | BBC2 9PM

Most households in Britain have had a brush with Ikea at some point – who among us doesn't have a panicked memory of trying to fit lots of long, thin boxes into the boot of the car, or wondered where on earth you left that Allen key?

This new three-part series is granted exclusive behind-the-scenes access to the Swedish furniture behemoth, to explore its idiosyncratic culture and the secrets of its massive success.

The opening instalment looks at Ikea's plans to ensure it stays relevant to shoppers for years to come through collaborating with external designers like Britain's Tom Dixon on a bed-sofa (not a sofa-bed, he tells us very pointedly), while the staff at the UK's first branch – Ikea Warrington – celebrate 30 years of flogging flatpacks to the good folk of Cheshire.

DERRY GIRLS | Channel 4 10PM

Erin gets put in charge of the school magazine (The Habit) in tonight's episode, giving her the power she's always craved.

Unfortunately, the 'cold' and 'ruthless' way she seized power doesn't impress the rest of the editorial staff, who all promptly quit, leaving Erin no choice but to replace them with her friends. However, with inspired features ideas like 'animals' and 'shoes of the world', how can she possibly fail?

Meanwhile, Orla is becoming increasingly obsessed with step aerobics and her instructor believes she has what it takes to go all the way – wherever that might be. "She might be gifted, but I just want her to have a normal childhood," frets Aunt Sarah. "It's out of control: she's stepping morning, noon and night. She nearly came through the ceiling yesterday."

DALE WINTON'S FLORIDA FLY DRIVE | Channel 5 9PM

Dale Winton has loved visiting Florida since the 1970s (no wonder he always looks so tanned), and in this four-part series, he's going to be giving us a guided tour of the Sunshine State. After a brief stop for a supermarket sweep to stock up on tea and marmalade to stuff in his suitcase, Dale boards a flight to Orlando, picks up a car and heads off to Walt Disney World – then onwards to Cassadaga, apparently the psychic capital of the world...

Secrets of the past

REQUIEM | BBC1 9PM

After last week's epiphany, Matilda calls the police to inspect the basement of Dean House for any signs that Carys was kept there as a child.

However, when PC Graves arrives, the lack of any concrete evidence for any of Matilda's assertions leaves her unconvinced – and Matilda is reluctant to tell her the real reason behind her suspicions, fearing that she might just be considered completely crazy.

Unwilling to give up, Matilda heads back to town in the hope of picking up more information in the pub – and while Trudy the barmaid is unwilling to give anything else away, antiques dealer Sylvia recognises Matilda (she's a fan) and is happy to barter Rose's address in exchange for an introduction to Nick. But will Rose answer any of Matilda's questions?

CRUISING WITH JANE McDONALD | Channel 5 9PM

Jane's adventures on (and off) the high seas return for a third series, as she checks a major item off her bucket list by visiting California. Travelling down the coast from Los Angeles to San Diego, Jane takes a stroll along the Hollywood Walk of Fame, pops backstage at a theatre to meet Dallas star Linda Gray, tackles the rolling hills of San Francisco, and even manages to make time on the ship between stops to attend a wedding between two of the passengers.

STAR CHOICE

Emmerdale's Sandra Marvin (Jessie)

"I love film noir and I've just watched Feud, which is about the relationship between Bette Davis and Joan Crawford. It's sad to see that a lot of the tension between Bette and Joan was manipulated, when maybe deep down they might have wanted to let their rivalry go."

HITS & MISSES!

WHAT'S HIT THE BULLSEYE RECENTLY – AND WHAT'S FALLEN WIDE OF THE MARK?

Todd Status Report! According to Summer, he's "hiding in the woods somewhere". Eileen's reaction to this hastily written exit plot speaks for the entire nation.

We'd love it if 'The Hawk' in Emmerdale was a regular character, like a sort of Yorkshire Batman. Every now and again he could swoop in on a Dales wrongdoer and give them a proper rollicking.

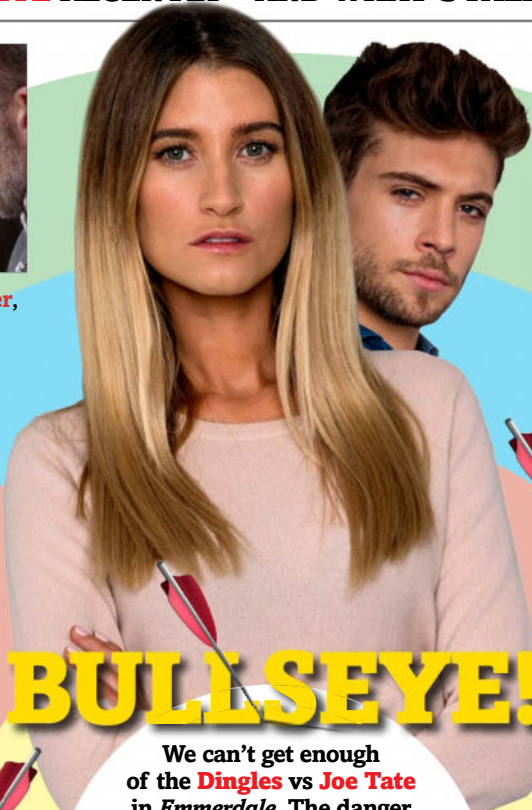

Oh no! We've been on a three-year journey, slowly warming to Scott in Hollyoaks... and now we discover he wears UGG boots. Ugh!

January has not been a good month for soap blondes in beds.

How disappointing that David and Leyla's fling happened off screen, merely to pave the way for Roxy Shahidi's maternity leave. We feel like we've been robbed of a juicy plot!

BULLSEYE!

We can't get enough of the Dingles vs Joe Tate in Emmerdale. The danger and mystery of who will next find themselves on the wrong end of a shotgun or wrecking ball – combined with the sense that arch-enemies Debbie and Joe are still madly in lust – make this the plot we tune in for. Kudos to whoever thought up the Tate Revival – long may it continue!

And people say that Corrie is 'too dark'. Utter nonsense.

Our undisputed Highlight Of The Week... Four generations of Platt women wreaking havoc in a lap-dancing club. What a hoot!

Apparently, Mel is known as Ciara's "blonde pitbull". That's a bit harsh, EastEnders.

Hark at Sonia, frowning at Stacey like someone who'd never ditched Martin Fowler for a better offer.

It's as if Baby Hope has finally woken up and realised she's living in Walford. She looks utterly petrified!

Whitney & Halfway is the sequel to Whitney & Woody, which was the sequel to Whitney & Lee. She clearly has a type – drippy bloke from the pub!
